

Coaching Chronicles

Storybirds in the Classroom

By Stacy Hyatt

<http://storybird.com/>

The students are very excited to share their work. Each is now a published author and has their own book to take home and share with their families. These stories can be viewed digitally on the storybird website too.

Storybirds inspire young writers and illustrators

Inside this issue:

Storybirds	1
Eduweb Adventures	2
LiveBinders	3

Special points of interest:

- <http://montanapcticoachingchronicles.wikispaces.com/Wet+and+Wild+Technology>
- www.livebinders.com
- storybird.com
- eduwebadventures.com

Excitement abounds in the kindergarten and fifth grade rooms at Bainville Public School. The students are meeting each week in the computer lab and collaborating to build Storybirds. Storybirds are short, art-inspired stories you make to share, read, and print. The following link will take you the Storybird website:

Adventures in the Classroom

By Paula Schledewitz

Take an adventure with your students anytime and in many subject areas. A wonderful site exists where students of all ages are able to live virtually during another time in history, raise tigers or visit a zoo. Eduweb adventures allows student and teachers to walk in another 's shoes independently or in groups. Check out our link at our Wikispace!

LiveBinders fire up Peer Coaching

By: Chandra Young

My Peer Coaching fire went from a spark to a flame when we discovered LiveBinders.com. My collaborating teacher is the 6th grade math teacher and I am the 6th grade language arts and writing teacher. Our good intentions to meet and do some wonderful work together just seemed to never come to fruition. I was eventually able to help her with some math and technology ideas when we collaborated on a binder we named Peer Coaching. In the binder, I could put any great websites or ideas from the web that coordinated with topics in her math curriculum. She was able to see these and decide to incorporate them or not. She, also, was able to add to the binder as she found great stuff.

Education

Peer Coaching
Stuff for peer coaching

By: Chandra123

Views: 16

Options ▼

UPDATED!